This letter from FBI director J. Edgar Hoover in the morning mail: Dear Ed: I've seen your column in the N.Y. Daily News, in which you mention the current magazine story by former Special Agent William Turner. There is simply no truth to his allegations of jealousy between the FBI and the Secret Service. Our relations are excellent and, as a matter of fact, the Chief of Secret Service, James J. Rowley, is a former Special Agent of this Bureau. Obviously, as a federal investigative agency, it is our obligation to disseminate all information coming to our attention which indicates potential danger to the President or his family. The Secret Service is charged with protecting the President and the FBI promptly advises that agency of any data pertinent to this responsibility. But the investigation of Lee Harvey Oswald had given absolutely no clue indicating Oswald was a potential assassin. Sincerely, Edgar.

As a matter of fact, the magazine which carried Turner's charges states that Turner had been dismissed from the FBI. The magazine failed to add that the Civil Service Commission upheld his dismissal after Turner had been given a full hearing! . . . .
